Scottish Fiddling Competition Added to Fair Hill Games

The Colonial Highland Games at Fair Hill, MD has included Scottish Fiddling in this year's competition along with its traditional piping, drumming, dancing competitions and its athletic competitions. There will also be fiddling workshops for those who want to bring their violin and learn some new technique and tunes. The fiddling will occur in the Clan Tent area on Saturday, MAY 16, 2009, so mark your calendar.

The competitions are sanctioned by Scottish FIRE Ltd. and have the following levels: Open, Junior, and Novice. Scottish FIRE is Scottish Fiddling Revival, Ltd., the North American association for Scottish Fiddling and all of its regional styles (Cape Breton, Shetland, etc.). The goals of Scottish FIRE are to preserve and promote Scottish fiddling through education, competition, and the support of aspiring and established Scottish fiddlers.

One of the foremost ways Scottish FIRE helps to preserve the Scottish fiddling tradition is by fostering and sanctioning Scottish fiddle competitions. As a non-profit organization since 1975, Scottish FIRE sets the rules and sanctions the many Scottish fiddling competitions held in the US, Canada, and other parts of North America.

Scottish FIRE also certifies judges for local and national competitions, and monitors the annual U.S. National Competition held at a sponsoring Highland Games during the Games season. In order to help preserve the Scottish fiddling tradition, Scottish Fiddling Revival maintains a list of active fiddling clubs around the world as well as links to related sites.

If you have information about Scottish fiddling that you think would be relevant, please contact them at <http://scottishfire.org>. Their goal is to help you discover and enjoy the wonderful tradition of Scottish fiddling.
